Whatever kind of writing speaks to you, this camp will be a space where you can come and write, write, write! A place where ideas can flow and imagination soars... a space to gather with others who have a love of words and writing. Each writer will get his/her own writer’s notebook and an assortment of writing instruments to choose from, that he/she can personalize and decorate and then use to let his/her creative genius grow. We will work on fun writing exercises and prompts to get our brains, hands and words ready each day, explore the different types of pieces that each writer is interested in working on, and share and help one another explore our creative interests.
